

ALT is seeking a Webmaster

Association for Linguistic Typology, Executive Committee

March 2020

The Association for Linguistic Typology is currently soliciting applications for the position of Webmaster. While this is a non-paid, volunteer position, it presents an excellent opportunity to exercise ones own skills in internet technology, acquire new ones and contribute service to the discipline of linguistic typology.

The webmaster is the person responsible for the design, regular update and maintenance of the ALT website, linguistic-typology.org and also helps out with the LINGTYP mailing list. She/he works closely with the President, the Treasurer and membership manager, the Secretary and Conference manager, and the Editor of the journal Linguistic Typology. The regular maintenance workload is not very heavy. The periods that precede and follow the bi-annual conference of ALT tend to be more intensive but are still manageable.

Desired qualifications

- Experience with internet technology:
 - webplatforms, wordpress in particular. Familiarity with other platforms is desirable.
 - databases
 - search techniques
 - mail
 - listserv
 - social media
- Familiarity with handling graphic files

More information about the position can be obtained from the outgoing webmaster, Ljuba Veselinova, ljuba@ling.su.se.

The incoming webmaster should be a member of ALT. Please send expressions of interest to ljuba@ling.su.se together with a link(s) to websites you have maintained or are currently maintaining by March 31, 2020.

The applications will be reviewed by the ALT Executive Committee.